

Ben Morieson

Feed in Tariff

31/5/16

To whom it may concern,

I would like you to know that I regard the feed in tariff as woefully low. I understand the principle that feed in tariff is not really meant to be equitable to the cost of producing and supplying electricity by the large main suppliers but I have invested substantially in the solar panel infrastructure to feed back into the grid and this investment should be taken into account. 8 cents a megawatt is a disgrace and a disincentive to further solar power investment. I have a North West facing 5kw system and in 12 months our feed in payments have totalled close to just on $147. Given we are not running any power during the day apart from TV being on standby mode, its not really the windfall.